Is IPTV Unlawful in Ireland?

Legally, IPTV as a technology is unequivocally legal. However, depending on the content being streamed, a IPTV provider may or may not have the necessary streaming rights. Thus, in order for the provider to stream content legally, they must have the streaming rights to the content being streamed.

Additionally, many people tend to stream IPTV content using a VPN in order to ensure privacy.

When is a VPN Necessary?

When streamening IPTV content a VPN is not necessary to have, however there are many reasons to recommend using a VPN, as they do provide:

- Privacy while streaming
- Access to content that may be blocked because of geo-restrictions, such as IPTV UK content.
- Prevention of throttling from your Internet Service Provider.

Use of a VPN provides benefits that are so significant, that they must be stated.

Impacts of Internet Speeds on IPTV

When streaming IPTV, these are the recommended internet speeds to ensure a seamless viewing experience.

- HD: 10-15 Mbps
- Full HD: 20 Mbps
- 4K: 30+ Mbps

Before subscribing to IPTV services, we recommend that you conduct a speed test to best prepare yourself.
